Funding Opportunity

Capacity Building Projects for Urban Indian Organizations

The First Nations Development Institute and the National Urban Indian Family Coalition of Seattle are seeking proposals for grant funding from nonprofit organizations that serve Native Americans in urban areas through community programs, projects and services. They are particularly interested in funding grantees who focus on community involvement and public services through a mix of housing, child welfare, employment, food bank, youth development, financial education, workforce development, cultural, language, recreation and/or commercial amenities.

Application Deadline: September 3, 2013

Training

Addressing Historical Inequities: Environmental Justice for Native Americans

Environmental health disparities disproportionately affect the 5.2 million Native Americans, Native Hawaiians, and Alaska Natives in the U.S. This webinar will highlight several ongoing environmental justice (EJ) issues that tribal groups have mobilized around for many years and highlight the environmental health disparities that continue to affect these populations. The webinar will also highlight key outcomes of the session on EJ and Native Americans held at the Environmental Health Disparities and Environmental Justice Meeting (July 29-31, 2013).

August 21, 2013 12:00 p.m. - 1:30 p.m. (Eastern Time)

National Council for Behavioral Health Integrating Addiction and Mental Healthcare Webinar

Five mental health and five addiction provider organizations from around the country recently completed the National Council’s Co-Occurring Disorder Learning Community to improve their ability to provide effective integrated and comprehensive care for individuals with co-occurring mental illnesses and addictions. The alumni sites will share their recipes for success in a two-part webinar series. The first webinar is tailored for mental health providers that want to learn to begin integrating addiction services.

August 22, 2013 2:00 p.m. - 3:00 p.m. (Eastern Time)
