Public Health Tribal Support Fellowship

A research opportunity is available at the Office for State, Tribal, Local and Territorials Support in the Tribal Support Unit of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). The chosen applicant will be involved with Tribal Support's research and program integration and evaluation projects. Tribal support is the primary link between the CDC, the Agency for Toxic Substance and Disease Registry and tribal governments. Tribal Support activities focus on fulfilling CDC’s supportive role in ensuring that American Indian/Alaska Native communities receive public health services that keep them safe and healthy.
